BLACK MOULD FOR CRIMMINS

How That Central Park Million-Dollar Fund Was a Veritable Gold Mine.

"EVENING WORLD" EXPOSURES.

Small Trees, Which Give No Shade,
Put Out in an Extravagantly
Neighboring Fashion.

Attention has been called from time to time since "The Evening World" began the publication of the tables from the records in the Comptroller's office to a disposition of the fund of $1,000,000 entrusted to the Park Board to feed idle and suffering poor of New York. It has been shown that large sums went into the pockets of favored contractors.

Among other items of excessive expense under this head was the sum of nearly $2,000, which, as the record showed, was the cost of setting out 125 small elm trees along the Eighth avenue walk, between Ninety-seventh and One Hundred and Tenth streets.

This was the summary of the expensive luxury which the Park Board provided for the people of the city: 125 holes were dug; $2,000 worth of dirt or "mould" was purchased to fill the holes; the trees cost $75.50, and the cost of the labor employed in the work was $4,124.25—a total cost of $6,899.75.

The greater portion of the "mould" used to fill the holes, which it is alleged was necessary to make the trees grow, was furnished by Contractor Thomas E. Crimmins.

An examination of Mr. Crimmins' vouchers on file in the Comptroller's office, show that the first requisition was made by Commissioner Tappan on March 13 last, for 350 cubic yards of "good garden mould," for which the city would pay $1 a cubic yard. This was cheerfully furnished by Mr. Crimmins. On April 11, another order for 500 cubic yards was given to him, and on April 13 for 300 yards, at the same rate, $1 a cubic yard.

Mr. Crimmins, however, furnished only eighty-two cubic yards of dirt on the last order, and intimated that the rest of the dirt, with the explanation that "this amount was all that was necessary to complete the contract." These supplies were lumped in one bill for $502, which was not paid by the city till Aug. 1.

It is curious to note, however, that Mr. Crimmins received another order for 500 cubic yards of the same purpose, on March 30, for filling up the tree holes in Eighth avenue, and for this he was paid only 90 cents a cubic yard. This bill, $225, was paid at the same time. The mould was delivered soon after the first order, and there is no apparent reason why he should have furnished this particular lot of mould at a cheaper price than that which he received for the previous or subsequent lots, or why he should have made a separate bill of it, the vouchers appearing in an entirely different set of papers.

To the first bill for $502 was annexed the report of Assistant Engineer R. W. Crenshaw. He says under date of June 8:

"From such information as is now attainable, it appears that all of this mould was received and used by the Park Department in improvements along Eighth avenue. As the price per yard is reasonable, I consider the claimant entitled to this payment."

It is possible that the Commissioners were in doubt about paying this bill of Mr. Crimmins after they had ordered the dirt, and agreed to pay the price he charged for it? And if so, what was the trouble?

The bills of two other contractors who furnish "good garden mould" for this same new tree scheme were also looked up among the vouchers. The orders were given about the same time in March last. Collins & Glavin, of 228 East 125th street, Collins & Glavin, of 228 East 125th street, received an order for 500 cubic yards of mould, but only 194 yards, for which they were paid 50 cents, or just half of what Mr. Crimmins received. The Commissioners evidently did not care to deal with cheap peddlers.

Canavan Bros., of 124 West One Hundred and First street, received an order for mould for which they were paid at the rate of 50 cents a cubic yard. Their entire bill for this material was $50, which was paid early in June.

In the engineer's report accompanying these vouchers, he says in regard to Collins & Glavin's bill that he believes from the former's report that the material was delivered as stated, and with reference to Canavan Bros.' supply he was satisfied that the material was delivered as stated.

An inspection of the "mould" delivered for this improvement has already been stated in "The Evening World" shows that it was all ordinary reddish brown, sandy soil, and is common enough everywhere in the upper end of the island.

Morton and Platt Deny the Reported Falling Out.

In Fact, They Held a Long Conference Last Evening.

The Governor-Elect Undecided
About His Military Staff.

The shock to the nerves of the machine Republicans over the story published in two of the morning papers, that "Boss" Platt and Governor-elect Morton were "out," and that the longed-for plums would not fall into their outstretched hands, seems to have been needlessly caused.

As a matter of fact, there is not a word of truth in the story. Mr. Morton and Mr. Platt are as good friends as ever, and the latter will have as big a hand as usual in the distribution of State patronage.

The only ground for the publication of the story was the alleged fact that Platt did not call upon the Governor-elect yesterday, when the latter arrived in the city. At once it was announced that a break had occurred, and that Mr. Morton would no longer seek the advice of the Republican leader, but would instead do everything possible for the United Leaguers, who are alleged to be Platt's bitterest enemies.

Gleason denying the story every particular, but the fact is that the two men met last night and for over an hour talked over State matters.

Mr. Platt reached his office on lower Broadway shortly before 9 o'clock to-day. He was found there by an "Evening World" reporter, and on being asked if he had read the stories of the alleged quarrel, he said he had not.

"You can say positively for me," he said, "that there is not a single word of truth in the story. I am in perfect relations with Mr. Morton as now, as they always have been, of the most pleasant and friendly kind. There is no friction, nor is there anything to cause it. I think that is denial enough."

He said that he had read the stories over the breakfast table at the Hotel Marlborough, Forty-third street and Fifth avenue, and he took no pains to conceal the fact that he was angry with Mr. Morton. A number of Republican friends had hurried around to see him and ask if the reported falling out was true, and he was up to his eyes in answering them.

The main trouble is with the number work on the matter this morning, but later announced that he would scarcely be able to give out the names for a day or so.

DIVVER ALL SERENE.

He Doesn't Mind the New Charges
Just Sworn To.

Police Justice Divver, who was holding court in Morrisania this morning, was asked whether he had any answer to make to the charges preferred against him by Lawyer Hale, of Brooklyn, before Chief Justice Daly, of the City Court. Mr. Divver made a strong pretense of indifference, and smilingly replied that he had nothing whatever to say. He tried a few more cases than usual this morning, and when the roll was called in private chambers he did it with an apparent satisfaction that he had done something to reach his salary.

Ex-Sheriff Gorman was in the Justice's private this morning, and said that his call did not bear upon the charges against the accused Justice.

What's a "Hewg" Anyway?

The "Hewg" is shown in Haverhill Heights, N. J., and the villagers live in mortal fear. No one so far is for burning barns and stealing chickens. In the past, however, the "Hewg" has been a terror to the farmers of the district. It is a small, black, cat-like animal, with a long, thin neck, and a small, round body. It is said to be the work of the devil, and is often seen in the most remote parts of the district. It is a very dangerous animal, and is often seen in the most remote parts of the district. It is a very dangerous animal, and is often seen in the most remote parts of the district.

A Pug Dog Image Her Pet.

In the hearing over the contested will of Lorry Jones, held at Freshford, yesterday, it was shown that Miss Jones's only pet was the image of a pug dog, which she made much of. The question is one of sanity.

Ex-Sheriff Gorman was in the Justice's private this morning, and said that his call did not bear upon the charges against the accused Justice.

Three Men Arrested by the Police
as a Precautionary Step.

The police of the One Hundredth street station, this morning freest Louis Badarone, Ludwig Zona and Charles Delianova, charged with knowledge of the alleged murder of Mrs. Primativa Foglia, at 282 Columbus avenue, first published exclusively in "The Evening World" of yesterday.

The precinct has six men on the case, and Headquarters two more, to prevent the culprits from escaping justice.

They are hot on the track of the husband, Bernard Foglia, and a companion with whom he was last seen.

Few of the elements of mystery that surround the cases have been cleared, but the conviction has become almost positive that the woman did not kill herself, but was murdered, and that the missing husband is the principal in the tragedy, but aided by accessories.

It has been learned that after his wife's death, Foglia bought an overcoat, and was seen in company with Martin Barbano, of 11 South Fifth avenue, last evening, loafing about the streets.

Foglia, at that time, showed $70 in cash that he carried in his pockets.

The deal girl, who was but nineteen years old, was married to Foglia by Alderman "Boyer" Flynn, in the City Hall, the month ago. Foglia was employed in Costa Bros. restaurant, 282 Columbus avenue. Primativa's father was John Orione, a piano-maker, living at 133 South Fifth avenue.

The young couple lived in comfortable circumstances. The two children they had left at birth. Recently the neighbors said that Foglia had grown insolent, and was a violent man, and that he had a habit of beating his wife.

He was an uncommonly pretty home for his class, and buying the best of groceries, and was well known to the neighbors, with whom they had few dealings.

The woman died Monday night, in all probability. The baker Wednesday morning found at the door the bread he left there Tuesday night, and left another loaf, and both were there when he found the body.

The baker tried the door. It was bolted. He inquired of the neighbors. None could give him any information. He then went to the door of the Foglia family, and found the door open. He went in, and found the body of the woman lying on the floor. He called the police, and they found the body.

The police found the body of the woman lying on the floor. They found the body of the woman lying on the floor. They found the body of the woman lying on the floor.

(By Associated Press.)
HIROSHIMA, Nov. 23.—A steamer which has arrived here from Moji reports that no assault had been made upon Port Arthur up to Nov. 15.

Two interpreters and one war correspondent, who were following the Second Japanese Army, have been captured and killed by the Chinese.

YOKOHAMA, Nov. 23.—The Minister of Finance has announced a further war loan of 50,000,000 yen in five, making 80,000,000 yen of the 100,000,000 authorized by Parliament to be raised for war purposes.

The Third Army has left Yijia on board forty transports. The destination of this army is not known, but it is rumored that it is intended to operate in the Yang-Tze-Kiang district of China.

(By Associated Press.)
The Yang-Tze-Kiang River has a total course of 2,500 to 3,000 miles, and drains with its numerous large affluents all the central provinces of China. It is crossed by the Imperial Canal, and the tide ascends it to Lake Po-Yang, 400 miles from the sea, beyond which it is navigable for 250 miles. It may be navigated to miles from its mouth by ships of the largest class.

Nankin, the southern capital of China, is a city of 1,000,000 people, and is situated on the Yang-Tze-Kiang River, about fifty miles eastward of the city. It communicates directly with the sea by the Yang-Tze-Kiang River, and is a very important city. It is the residence of a Grand Viceroy, who has authority over the Chinese provinces. It is a great military depot, and the chief seat of literature in the Chinese Empire.

VAPOR ON MOUNT RAINIER.

No Doubt but that There Has Been a Convulsion.

SEATTLE, Wash., Nov. 23.—Despite the incredulity of some persons there is no reason to doubt that some natural convulsion has occurred at the summit of Mount Rainier. The mountain was hidden by clouds all day yesterday, so that it was impossible to observe whether the phenomena noticed yesterday continued.

A person who has made the ascent, and is therefore familiar with the summit, saw the mountain at the time when the smoke and steam were observed rising from its summit, but he does not credit the story of a change in the form of the summit. The theory was that the vapor was caused by the contact of the warm air with the icy mountain. Those who observed the vapor, who are seven in number, are positive in their adherence to their original statement, and several of them examined the mountain through powerful glasses, and have made drawings of the summit, showing the new peak.

POLICE BLACKMAIL.

Patrolman Mulcahey Will Have to Answer Serious Charges.

Tried to Collect Money Because a Cow Was Kept.

He Was All Ready to Retire When
This Case Came Up.

Patrolman William L. Mulcahey, of the Sanitary Squad, who last Wednesday made application to the Police Board for retirement, will have to answer to the Commissioners to the serious charge of levying blackmail.

The complainant is Mrs. Annie Alwerther, who lives in One Hundred and Sixth street, between Amsterdam avenue and the Boulevard.

Wednesday afternoon, Mrs. Alwerther appeared before the Police Board, and stated that the accused policeman, had, on three occasions, obtained money from her by threatening to prosecute her for maintaining a nuisance.

Mrs. Alwerther, it appears, keeps a cow on her premises. Mulcahey, she alleged, called on her three times, and exhibited what he represented to be an order from the Board of Health to abate the nuisance said to exist in the cow stable.

He informed her, she says, that any difficulty could be obviated by the payment of a few dollars.

Two, she alleges, she gave him $2 and the third time $1.

The same afternoon upon which the case was made public, Mulcahey was picked out and positively identified from among half a dozen officers.

GENERAL RISE IN PRICES.

Favorable Bond Outlook Helps the Stock Market.

The announcement in "The Evening World" yesterday that the new Government loan would, in all probability, be largely oversubscribed was much discussed in financial and stock circles to-day.

There seems to be no longer any doubt that the loan will be taken freely, and this has caused an improved feeling in the markets for securities. Prices gradually crept up under moderate purchases, despite a decline in Sugar from 85-3-4 to 87-3-4, on a belief that President Cleveland, in his forthcoming message, will recommend the removal of the protection now accorded the Trust.

The heavy falling off in the earnings of the Northwest Company for October had been fully discounted, although the bears continue to harp on the question of the dividend which will be acted upon next Tuesday.

It is impossible at this time to say whether the regular 3 per cent. will be paid, or a reduction to 2-1-2 per cent. made in consequence of the falling off of earnings for the six months.

Stocks rose 1-4 to 1-3-4; Rock Island 1-4 to 1-3-4; Lake Shore 1-3-4 to 1-3-4; Jersey Central 1-3-4 to 1-3-4; Union 1-4 to 1-3-4; Burlington & Quincy 1-4 to 1-3-4; Chicago & North Western 1-4 to 1-3-4; St. Paul 1-4 to 1-3-4; Manhattan 1-4 to 1-3-4; United States Cordage common 40 to 41-2; preferred 41-2 to 42-4 and guaranteed to 42.

CRASHED INTO THE PILING.

Ferry-Boat Netherlands Badly
Damaged and Four Men Injured.

PASSENGERS IN A PANIC.

Women's Cabin Converted Into

ACCIDENT DUE TO THE TIDE.

The Pilot Tried to Enter the Barclay Street Slip but Was Carried Out of His Course.

The double-deck propeller ferry-boat Netherlands, of the Hoboken Ferry Company, while trying to effect a landing in the Barclay street slip shortly before 9 o'clock this morning crashed into the piling on the west side of the slip, and was almost entirely demolished. Four people were injured in the crash, none fatally, and many others received bruises. The names of the four are:

LOUIS A. ROBERT-COLLEARY, fifty-three years old, of the Equitable Life Insurance Company; lives at Hugh and Spring streets, Hoboken; head severely cut.

FREDERICK RENNOLD, fifty-two years old, of Park avenue, Hoboken; contusion of the right knee, ankle dislocated and other bruises.

FRANK G. HADAM, twenty-eight years old, laborer, 19 Newark street, Hoboken; left hand cut.

A. L. BAXTON, fifty-three years old, head injured, and other minor wounds.

The accident was due to the tide, and the tide which was running at the time, and the efforts of the pilot to avoid running into a tug boat which crossed the slip just as the Netherlands was about to enter.

About 150 passengers were on board and instantly there was a panic.

Passengers Panic Stricken.

Women screamed and fainted. Men called for help and shouted out impossible orders and suggestions. The lower deck starboard cabin was piled with flying splinters. Men covered with blood lay around in all directions on the floor.

A number of passengers were gathered on the front deck when the crash came, and several others were knocked down. To add to the excitement the passengers in that part of the boat were compelled to avoid the hoods of the struggling animals.

The boat struck the piling on the starboard side, and almost immediately almost opposite to the double stairway leading from the lower to the upper deck.

The woodwork and windows on her starboard guard side were torn away. The front deck was broken up, and the lower deck was shattered. The lower deck starboard cabin was piled with flying splinters. Men covered with blood lay around in all directions on the floor.

Finally the boat struck a more than usually stout pile and stuck fast. Then the officers and crew of the boat, assisted by the passengers who were not injured, started to pull the boat away. The boat was pulled away, and the passengers were rescued. The boat was damaged, but the passengers were not injured.

The passengers on the upper deck, when they saw that the Netherlands had brought up and was in no danger of sinking, calmed down, and about fifty of them took the chances of getting ashore by jumping from the boat on the heads of the piles.

Escaped by a Ladder.

A ladder was also put out to the pier and a few young women who had recovered from their fainting spells, managed to scramble to terra firma.

The accident of the Netherlands attracted a large crowd, that gathered on the pier where the Netherlands was held fast. Squads of police from the Church street and Steamboat stations came hurrying up, and helped to keep the crowds back. The police were very busy, and the passengers were very anxious to get ashore.

A Second Collision.

At 8 o'clock, twenty minutes after the crash, the Netherlands got loose and started for her regular slip, adjoining the pier on the north. Her steering gear must have been injured when she struck the piling, for she refused to answer her helm, and again crashed on the starboard side into the piling.

Beyond carrying away a few feet more of her starboard side, and giving the passengers another fright, no further damage resulted from the second collision.

A tug came hurrying up and hauled the Netherlands's stern free. Then she was dragged to the pier, and the passengers were rescued. The boat was damaged, but the passengers were not injured.

Two ambulances on the scene.
